And on Broadway, three thousand miles away, the women who shopped were buying the same boxed powders, the same bottled toilet waters, the same patented soaps and brushes and candies that were to be found here. And in the immense grocery store nearby there were beautifully spacious departments worthy of any great city, devoted to rare fruits, and coffees and teas, and every pickle that ever came in a glass bottle, and every little spiced fish that ever came in a gay tin. A white-clad young man demonstrated a cake-mixer, a blue-clad young woman demonstrated jelly-powders. Nearby were the one or two big dry-goods stores, with lovely gowns in their windows, and milliners shops, with French hats in their smart Paris boxes-there was even a very tiny, very elegant little shop where pastes and powders and shampooing were the attraction; a shop that had a French name et Cie over the door. In short, there were modern women, and rich women, in Santa Paloma, as these things unmistakably indicated. Where sixty years ago there had been...
